10 Quick Tips to a Successful

PAYE Modernisation Strategy

for Payroll Bureaus

Increasing prices with PAYE Modernisation

Increasing your prices is never very popular with clients but it may be necessary to recoup the additional hours required to comply with PAYE Modernisation each pay period on behalf of your clients.

In the past, employers submitted their end of year payroll returns to Revenue at the end of the tax year. Payroll bureaus and accountants typically processed the payroll on behalf of their clients just once a year. However, the introduction of PAYE Modernisation has changed that yearly submission process to a more frequent, per pay period model.

Increasing prices with PAYE Modernisation

PAYE Modernisation has changed the payroll process forever. Accountants and payroll bureaus now need to process their client's payroll and send the Payroll Submission Request (PSR) to Revenue each time an employee is paid at every pay period. This real time reporting means that bureaus should look to increase the prices they charge for payroll and PAYE Modernisation services to compensate for the additional work required.

Your client will want to know what they are getting in return for the additional fee, therefore, communication will be fundamental to your success. It is natural for clients to be cautious when they are told that the prices are increasing, however, you must be confident in outlining the additional work and expertise required to process payroll with PAYE Modernisation.

In this guide we will examine the best practices to consider which will improve profits and increase Revenue.

Communication

Best practice is to clarify the new pricing structure, specify the date at which the price increase will come into effect and explain the benefits to clients. By explaining your price increase and justifying the advantages for your client you will naturally be more successful.

Customer Newsletter

A customer newsletter is a great way to explain how your firm has adapted to the new Revenue PAYE Modernisation obligations and how has affected your payroll service offerings to clients.

Value Proposition

Be sure to convey the client value proposition of outsourcing PAYE Modernisation to you. If you take the opportunity to inform your clients about the added value, they are more likely to remember, appreciate and understand your service offering.

Charging Hourly?

Charging per hour is probably best avoided. As a payroll bureau, you are selling your payroll expertise. If you are using PAYE Modernisation and Revenue recognised payroll software tools that allow for automation, it is inevitable that you will become very efficient at payroll processing.

Switch from a Yearly Model to a Monthly Model

To comply with PAYE Modernisation, clients (or you on their behalf) must submit their payroll information to Revenue each pay cycle, as employees are being paid. It is inevitable that you would move your clients to a monthly or even a weekly payroll service offering. It will no longer be an option to submit yearly payroll returns. As you are now processing the payroll monthly or weekly this presents the perfect opportunity to increase the price of your services.

Cover Training Costs

Naturally, you will want your increased prices to at least cover any additional costs incurred as a result of PAYE Modernisation. It is important that bureaus shop around for payroll software that offers free PAYE Modernisation training. Some payroll providers are charging as much as €800 for accountants to access training or attend seminar sessions.
